Using Slido during the SAH COS Consensus Workshop

A step-by-step guide for online participants

Slido is a simple website where you can answer questions during each session, post written comments, and react to other people's comments. You do not need an account, a password, or a download. It works on a computer, phone, or tablet.

About the pictures in this guide

The pictures are simplified drawings of the Slido screens on a phone. Slido looks very similar on a computer. The orange numbers in each picture match the numbered steps in the text.

Tip: using Zoom and Slido at the same time

The easiest way is to keep Zoom on your computer and open Slido on your phone or tablet. If you only have one computer, open Slido in your web browser and place the browser window beside the Zoom window.

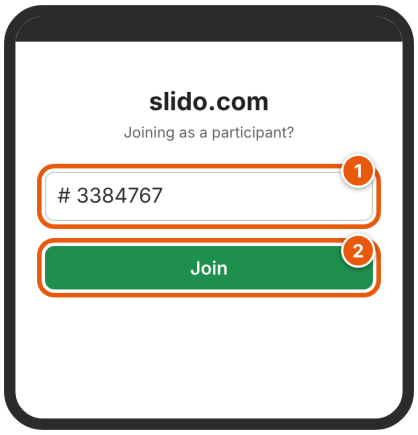

During the workshop, a Slido panel may also appear inside Zoom. You are welcome to use it there instead. It is the same Slido event.

Step 1: Open Slido

Use whichever of these three ways is easiest for you:

- Click the link in your invitation email: https://app.sli.do/event/uYNAETiYf9SK9A14Gojcun
- Scan the QR code below with your phone camera, then tap the link that appears.
- Type the code: go to slido.com, type 3384767 in the box, and tap Join.

Scan with your phone camera to open Slido.

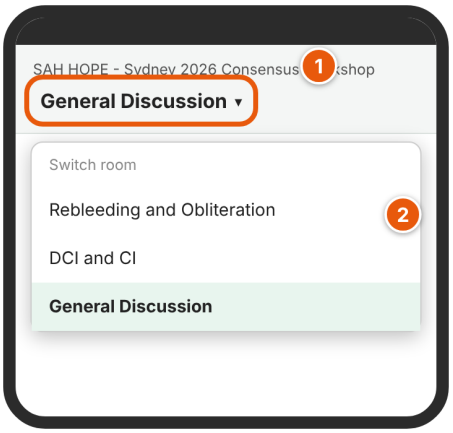

Joining with the event code at slido.com.

If Slido asks for your name when you open it, please type it as First Last - Perspective (Country), for example “Jane Smith - Lived experience (Australia)”. Your name will appear next to your comments. If you leave it blank, your comments will appear without a name.

Step 2: Choose the right room

The Slido event has several rooms. Each room is a separate space with its own questions. The name of the room you are in appears at the top of the screen.

1. Tap the room name at the top of the screen.
2. Choose the room you want from the list.

Switching between rooms.

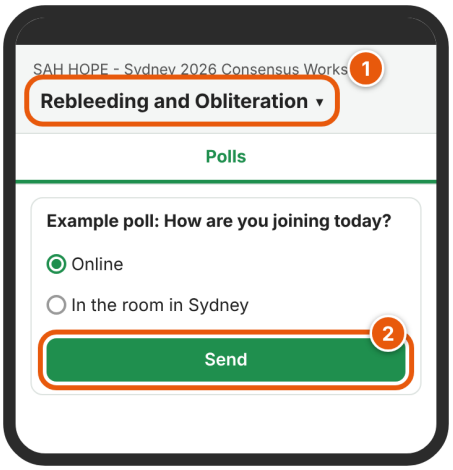

Rooms open during the day as each session begins, so you may not see every room in the list at the start.

Room	What it is for
Session rooms: Rebleeding and Obliteration DCI and CI HRQoL (health-related quality of life) Functional Outcomes Cognition and Executive Fxn	During each session, the moderator, Gordon Fernie, will open a series of questions in that session's room. Please answer them when he asks (Step 3).
General Discussion	Open all day for written comments, for example if you would prefer not to interrupt the meeting or there is not time to speak. The discussion itself takes place in the meeting; this room makes sure your comment is still seen (Step 4).

Step 3: Answer the questions in a session room

During each session, Gordon Fernie will open questions in that session's room. A question may appear on your screen by itself; if not, switch to the room for the current session (Step 2).

1. Make sure you are in the room for the current session.
2. Choose or type your answer and tap Send.

Answering a question (example question only).

- Questions only appear while the moderator has them open. If you see “No active polls”, there is nothing to answer yet.
- Some questions ask you to choose an option; others ask you to type an answer or give a rating.

Step 4: Post a comment in the General Discussion room

The General Discussion room has one question that stays open all day: “Please use this space for open discussion - we will do our best to moderate and watch.”

1. Switch to the General Discussion room (Step 2). Tap the box under the question and type your comment.
2. Tap Send. You can post as many comments as you like during the day.
3. Comments from everyone appear below, with the newest at the top. Tap the reaction button under a comment to show your support for it.

Posting a comment in the General Discussion room.

- Please keep each comment about one point. If you have two points, send two comments.
- You cannot reply directly under someone else's comment. To respond to someone, post a new comment and start it with their name.
- The organizers may remove comments that are off topic or inappropriate.

Your experience and perspective

Many of you bring personal experience of subarachnoid hemorrhage (SAH), whether as a patient, family member, clinician, or researcher, and we are grateful that you are giving your time to be with us. Because the day is focused on reaching agreement on what should be measured, and how, and the time available is short, we are unfortunately not able to include a space for sharing personal stories, either in the meeting or in Slido.

We would ask instead that you bring your experience into the opinions you share: when you answer the questions in each session, when you post in the General Discussion room, and when you speak. Your perspective is central to this work, and we want to hear it.

If you would like to share your story, our partners at the Brain Aneurysm Foundation (BAF) offer many valuable resources. Anyone can share their story on the BAF website (Share Your Story), and you can connect with others through the BAF Online Support Community.
